

About

Last Updated Wednesday, 25 October 2006

Okay, Here's The Story....So Far

The original concept of this site was really all about me. Approximately 4 years ago I became very interested in finding out what it takes to create a web site. I decided that it would make sense for my first web site to be more or less a reference tool documenting all the other sites I frequented. I really didn't care if anyone saw it, I just wanted a place to make it easier to surf the web. Being ever motivated to improve, this site just kept progressing. I found more and more content and things I wanted to try. For instance, I had been taking pictures for years, most of which had only been seen by myself, or a select few. At this point, it started to become clear to me that this site could be something I might want to share with friends. As you can see it's become a little less about "ME" and a little more about "US" and let me tell you , it's better that way. Needless to say, this little project has become a beast within itself that consumes most of my free time. The way I look at it is it's a journal of our lives, and I more than happy to be the one to document it. Thank you for stopping by and I hope you enjoy.

Why Rock N Roll Junkie You Might Ask???

I'll keep this one short and sweet. It's all about music, my life that is. I'm not a "musician", I'm not in a band, I just love music. When I'm not updating this site I'm probably checking out a band some where, or trying to figure out who's playing where, next. When it comes to music, I guess I'll always be chasing the dragon, looking for my next fix. And that's what makes me..."THE ROCK N ROLL JUNKIE"